BENNINGTON, VT., APRIL 4, 1912

Motto of political managers in Vermont: If you see what you want, claim it.—Barre Times.

And if you don't see what you want, claim it anyway.

When a New York man with a grievance abuses the newspapers, the editors sometimes find a subtle and complete revenge by simply printing his hasty remarks in full.—Washington Post.

The man or the newspaper who makes a violent personal attack usually helps the one whom he seeks to injure.

The Evening Argus has complied with all the requests of the Bennington Banner, but the Banner has not yet answered our question asking if it was satisfied with Mr. Fletcher's record as a taxpayer during the past ten or so years. We rather thought that the Banner would "duck"—Montpelier Argus.

In the midst of other troubles, The Banner has overlooked the Argus' request and not from any conscious desire to duck. If the Argus will send us a copy of the issue in which it prints Mr. Fletcher's record as a taxpayer, we will undertake to say what we think of it. We have not noticed in the Argus and other papers many insinuations and suggestions that Mr. Fletcher's record as a taxpayer was not above reproach, but have never chanced to see the paper that gives the details of his record without which any comment would be so poorly grounded as to be worse than useless.

Chas. A. Calderwood of St. Johnsbury, in this week's Gazette, announces his candidacy for the nomination as one of the senators from this county. Mr. Calderwood is one of the substantial business men at the county capital, where he has been located in the mercantile trade for the past 37 years. He represented St. Johnsbury in the last legislature and was chairman of the important committee on Corporations. He is quite well-known throughout the county and the Gazette believes his candidacy will receive due consideration at the hands of the republican voters.—Hardwick Gazette.

From personal knowledge, the editor of The Banner can testify as to the high character and ability of Mr. Calderwood. He is a man of courage, character and conviction. He is of the kind and calibre that is needed in the Vermont legislature, of unswerving honesty, unquestioned integrity, and earnest desire to serve the state. He is a man who would never succumb in dark and dubious scheming, but would fight his battles by daylight and win or lose by open, straightforward effort.

We trust Superintendent Barsa is keeping safely within the bounds of truth, if he feels called on to set forth the really alarming social and moral conditions in Vermont, as he finds them. Not that we question his loyalty or his motive, but the truth, fully presented, is doubtless bad enough. It should be noted that Superintendent Barsa deals wholly with the debit side of the ledger. He does not present the situation in all its phases. There is good, as well as evil, everywhere, even in what are termed decadent rural communities. No one desires to have the eye closed to the evil, and it is well to arouse our people to a full comprehension of what really exists, but on the other hand such startling statements as those of Mr. Barsa, presented nakedly as they are by the metropolitan press, without the relieving effect of the other side, do great harm to our state, and are unjust to it.—Randolph Herald and News.

The danger to which the Herald and News refers is a very real one especially in its effect outside the state. We whose service it is to make newspapers and are in effect retail dealers in facts and theories, should bear in mind it is the evil side of a picture that rests longest in the average mind. Vermont has some serious rural life problems and so has every rural section that has been settled for more than two generations. Every eastern, southern and central state has this problem.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., containing no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Bennington Rheumatics Now Get Relief at Home

What chance does any sufferer take when "Nurito" is guaranteed to relieve Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuritis, or money refunded? The worst symptoms in the most severe cases are relieved by "Nurito," a prescription—not a patent medicine—free from Opium and Narcotics.

"Nurito" is a specific, positive in its action, quickly removing all aches and pains in swollen and inflamed joints and muscles and limbering them up in a manner that will surprise you.

Go to W. L. Gokey's, Quinlan's Pharmacy, D. A. Ward's and Harwood's Drug Store today, get a $1 box of "Nurito," and feel it work. Nothing has ever done what this prescription will do.

to a greater or less degree and it would be the part of cowardice to refuse to meet and try to overcome it, but in doing it we must not forget the brighter side of the picture. This brighter side will also respond to effort and encouragement for the best crops are produced by the fertile soil. We must cultivate the two together and never dwell so long on the evil that we forget the good.

AVIATOR ROGERS KILLED BY FALL AT LONG BEACH

ious accidents was a series of amash ups and lucky escapes which with long delays due to adverse weather made it a matter of nearly three months' persistence before, on December 10, 1911, he finally landed at Long Beach. His perseverance and nerve had carried him a distance of more than 5000 miles. His machine was broken and repaired so many times that only the vertical rudder and the dripping pan of the original apparatus remained when he ended his flight.

Mrs. T. P. Harris of Terrill, Tex., handed Rogers a four-leaf clover the afternoon he rose from the Sheephead Bay track. New York has seen little of him since his leaving, but scores of cities in the West came to know him for his daring flights over them and his many long stops with their people. Although Rogers lived in New York much of the time, his home was in Havre de Grace, Md., where he leaves a mother, whose enthusiasm over the fame which her son won was always mingled with fear that he would meet some such death as came to him yesterday. At the time of his first fall in the tree near Middletown, N. Y., she traveled there to plead with him to give up the flight, but he assured her that he would be cautious and proceeded.

Rogers often talked of the deaths of other aviators. "Etherial asphyxia, or aerial somnolence," was the trouble with many, he said. "It lurks in the pockets of the upper air strata and creeps irresistibly upon the senses of an aviator, lulling him into a dreamy unconsciousness." Rogers' death makes 127 aeroplane fatalities since aviation began. He is the 22d American aviator in the list of victims.

Calbraith P. Rogers' wife is a Bennington girl, the daughter of Fred O. Graves, whom he married at "The Little Church Around the Corner" in New York five years ago. She was Miss Mabel Graves and the couple met in Jacksonville, Fla., where the young woman and her mother, since deceased, were passing the winter. Rogers was 34 years of age and his widow is 28.

Mrs. Rogers was at her home here at the time the unfortunate aviator first came into prominence as a flyer by winning the duration prize at the meet in Chicago. She left here immediately for the west and had since been the companion of her husband as he traveled through the middle west making exhibition flights. She also was a passenger on the special train that accompanied Rogers in his flight across the country.

Since his marriage, Rogers had been an occasional visitor to Bennington and had made a large number of acquaintances who received the news of his death with sincere regret. It is to be doubted if there was another community in the entire country in which greater interest was manifested in his long flight to the Pacific coast. Persons who were only sufficiently acquainted with him to recognize his tall figure, on the street followed his career with its accidents, delays and hair-breadth escapes with absorbing interest.

By a strange combination of circumstances, Mr. Graves did not learn of Rogers' death until 11 o'clock this forenoon. He has not been in the best of health during the past few days and left orders when he retired last night that he should not be disturbed. To complicate matters every member of the family happened to be out of town today. Miss Frank Eldred, a sister of his wife, who has lived at the house much of the time since the death of Mrs. Graves, was called to Pittsfield this morning by the serious illness of a sister. Miss Irene Graves had recently gone to Troy to visit her sister, Sallie, who is a student at the Troy Conservatory of Music. A son, Fred, had returned yesterday to resume his studies at Vermont Academy, Saxtons River.

Mr. Graves stated this morning that the family had only yesterday received a letter from Mrs. Rogers in which she stated that all was well with herself and husband and that they expected to return east the latter part of the month. Mrs. Rogers, he said, would undoubtedly soon return to her home here in Bennington.

How This Country Grows

Three states, Virginia, Nebraska and Washington, the oldest state in the Union, a great central state and the newest of Pacific coast commonwealths, in the agricultural return just issued for the three, by the census, show how this country grows. Washington in 40 years has seen its farms grow 100 fold in value, from $6,362,235 to $623,754,341. In the last ten years they have quadrupled in value. The number of farm owners in the state has almost doubled in the same decade, so that this is not wealth that goes to the few.

Nebraska, with $2,079,818,647 of farm property, has trebled its value in ten years, quadrupled it in 20 years, grown eight fold in 30 years, 76 fold in 40 years and 415 fold in 50 years. The number of farms in the last ten years has changed but little, but the average value per farm has grown two and one-half times. Of the adult population, male and female, in the state, one in 12 owns a farm against one in 20 in 1890, 20 years ago. As all married women have an interest in their husbands' farms, it is probable that if the facts were known it would be found that very nearly one in six of the adult population of Nebraska have a title in some land. The mortgages are in number two-thirds of what they were 20 years ago. Yet the last decade is one in which we are assured that the richer are growing richer and the poor growing poorer.

Virginia is a state which must look on as stationary but its farm values have doubled in ten years, rising from $232,923,327 to $455,065,383. Its area in farms is just half that of Nebraska and its value is only one-third, so that while the average acre in Nebraska is worth $46.95, in Virginia it is worth only $27.29. But this is the Virginian's fault. There is not an acre in Virginia which is not near or a market, has not a greater variety of possibilities and could not produce more value per acre than an acre in Nebraska.

The extent to which property is being defused is also apparent by the fact that one fourth of the farms owned in Virginia, or 32,228 out of 133,664 are owned by colored men, who were slaves half a century ago. In South Carolina, where there are 64,350 farms owned, 20,372 or almost one-third, are owned by colored holders.

These three states tell their own story of an abounding increase of the value of land owned by the many of the constant diffusion of this land, while the share owned continues steadily increasing.—Philadelphia Press.

Those Who Can't Insure

are no worse off than those who won't insure, except that they are not to blame if harm comes to their families. It is better to try and fail than not to try at all. National Life Insurance Company of Vermont. (Mutual.) Earle S. Kinsley, General Agent, Mead Building, Rutland, Vt.

Heat From Gas Lights

It is true, Gas Lights make heat but it is also true that they make less heat than is ordinarily supposed, and that this heat and its effects are a decided advantage. As to actual heat, a gas lamp burning 31-3 feet of gas per hour will liberate as much heat as a piece of coal weighing not 3 oz. Would you expect to heat a room with a 3 oz. lump of coal burning for an hour? And yet they say a gas lamp is a good heater. Of course gas lights do give some heat, but this heat, if it be appreciable at all, is welcome in our climate 8 months of the year, and the other 4 months are the months of long daylight hours, when little gas is burned for lighting. An electric light gives more heat than is usually supposed, about 95 per cent of its energy being in the form of heat. Then scientists tell us that electric lights of the same candle power give more radiant heat than gas lights in the lower hemisphere, i. e., where the user is, and radiant heat has deleterious effects on parts of the body, notably the hair. The heat from gas lights is mostly in convection currents which create a draught and assist in ventilating the room as well as in sterilizing the germs and animal matters thrown off in exhalation and invisible respiration.
